"OLD TIME SPIRIT IS REVIVED.

OLD GRADS GIVE TALKS

Arch Frank Recalls Football of 1898; The Rev. Samuel Grundy Fisher Sends Greetings.

The "old time spirit" was revived this morning at Maryville High School, when alumni, representing thirty-two classes, marched into the auditorium and became a part of the student body for two hours.

In the line of march were prominent business men of Maryville, teachers, college students, mothers and fathers. In all, there were 130 registered alumni. There were others who failed to register.

There was nothing lacking in the third annual Homecoming, from the moment when Chairman Gordon Roach stressed the importance of the occasion until the benediction was pronounced by the oldest alumnus, John Spiekerman.

The singing of "Maryville High, I Love You" put the finishing touch to the occasion. Fifteen "Rahs" by the present student body for the alumni added a friendly welcome to the opening program.

"A greater emphasis is laid on tools than on the mastery of tools," declared the first alumnus speaker, Roy Lippman. "We have the tools with which to work but we do not make the best use of them. I do not mean that it is not necessary to use them. There should be a well grounded determination to use the things that are within reach.

More Expected Now.

"Students of today are held in a more severe accounting because they have the greater advantages over my day and much more is expected. The schools today are offering a fully developed course of studies and activities and are laying special emphasis on citizenship training.

"The former student revives his interest in school life when a home has been established and cherishes the memory of those days, while looking with pride to the hour when his son or daughter stands on the platform of the same school and gets the diploma," Mr. Lippman said.

"School is capable of making dreams come true. It is giving out to the students the practical tools of honesty and industry," he concluded.

Superintendent L. E. Ziegler was unable to fill the place on the program as announced yesterday. His place was taken by Martin Lewis jr., who was graduated from M. H. S., in 1916.

"In every crown there must be a shining light," this speaker said, "and that gem in my estimation is no other than Miss Laura B. Hawkins."

He laid stress on the value of the investment in and results from the school's orchestra, agriculture class, various organizations and other forms of present day school life.

"The school system," he said, "should not only continue but grow. The schools are fully equipped to meet all needs. The program of the school is certainly four-fold."

Football of 1898 Recalled.

Arch Frank gave a review of football days of 1898, declaring that those were the days when football was so rough that the umpire had to be a pretty good sport to withstand the trials of the game. There were no line formations. The ball was not carried but was kicked until the goal was reached and, Mr. Frank said, "it was mighty hard on the shins." Later they did inaugurate line formation, he explained, with a few off-side rules. "Taking it all in all, we had a happy-go-lucky good time," he stated.

Emmett Bartram, in a pep talk, pointed out that pep was the essential of school life and the greater part of victory. He gave a number of accounts of games in and out of town in his day and how the pep spirit was carried on. "The boys at my time were peppier than the girls," he confided.

Musical numbers were supplied by Miss Audrey Stiwalt, Miss Mildred Tebow, William Gaugh and the Boys Glee Club of the Maryville High School.

The following classes were represented at the exercises this morning: 1888, 1894, 1895, 1899, 1905, January, 1907; May, 1907; May, 1908; May, 1909; January, 1911; May, 1911; 1913; January, 1914; May, 1915; May, 1916;

The Rev. and Mrs. R. E. Snodgrass returned yesterady noon from Memphis, Tenn., where they attended the international convention of Disciples of Christ. Mr. Snodgrass was honored at that convention by being elected vice-president of the National Evangelistic board and was elected as a member of the board of directors of the association for a period of three years.

Mr. Snodgrass has been conducting a meeting in Jacksonville, Fla., and went to Memphis after the close of that meeting. Mrs. Snodgrass joined him at Memphis several days ago.

Mr. Snodgrass leaves in the morning for Enid, Okla., where he will conduct a four-weeks meeting at the Central Christian Church in that city. His brother, the Rev. R. C. Snodgrass, is pastor of the Enid Church.

BOARD NEEDS MORE MONEY

SECOND TAG DAY WILL BE HELD TOMORROW.

CALLS ARE EARLIER

Free Will Offering To Be Taken At Thanksgiving Service To Aid Welfare Workers.

The Maryville Welfare Board will hold its second tag day tomorrow, it has been announced. At the first tag day held last Saturday $150 were collected but so many are in need that it is necessary to issue a second call, W. A. Miller, board member, declared this morning.

Nothing special will be done for Maryville "poor" this Thanksgiving since the board has all it can do to meet the bare necessities, Mr. Miller declared.

The condition of Maryville's needy seems worse this year than ever. More calls are coming in earlier, and the board is fairly besieged with persons seeking aid.

Hal Hooker who has been spending this week at the American Royal Live Stock Show in Kansas City, will return to Maryville tonight, to be here in time for the drive tomorrow. Headquarters for the taggers will be at the Bee Hive Shoe Store.

A free will offering will be taken at the union services at the Presbyterian Church, Thanksgiving, the proceeds of which will go to the Welfare Board.

Mrs. W. A. Blagg Dies After Long Illness

Funeral Services Will Be Conducted at Christian Church; Burial in Miriam Cemetery.

Mrs. Myrtle V. Blagg, wife of W. A. Blagg, Maryville attorney, died at 1 o'clock this morning at the family home, 302 West Second street. She had been ill of a complication of diseases for a number of years. Mrs. Blagg's condition had been critical since last Tuesday.

A Christian Science service will be conducted at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Christian Church. The body will lie in state at the residence tomorrow morning from 9 to 12 o'clock. Burial will be in Miriam cemetery. The pallbearers will include J. S. Shinabargar, H. E. Wright, Harvey L. Haines, Harry Snyder, T. H. Cook and William Swinford.

Mrs. Blagg was born Oct. 2, 1869, in Maryville, where the present home of Dr. J. H. Todd is located on West Third street. She had been a life-long resident of Nodaway County.

Surviving Mrs. Blagg are her husband, one son, Edison Blagg, living southwest of Maryville, and her mother, Mrs. Sarah E. Wright, 88 years old. Mrs. Wright had made her home with her daughter for over thirty years. She also leaves two brothers, W. Ed Wright, Fort Collins, Colo.; Perry S. Wright, St. Joseph; two sisters, Mrs. A. F. Howden, Skidmore; Mrs. A. D. Leighty, Maryville; and two grandchildren, Betty and Billy Blagg. A son, Robert Ellison Blagg, died in 1920. Perry S. Wright and Mrs. Howden were here at the time of their sister's death.

Mr. and Mrs. Harve Bush and Mrs. Stella Hagey of Clearmont and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McCollum of Burlington Junction spent yesterday in St. Joseph.

DIVORCES ARE ON INCREASE

MARRIAGES HERE FEWER IN 1925 THAN IN 1924.

SEPARATIONS DOUBLED

However, Nodaway County Has Smaller Proportion Of Nuptial Ruptures Than State Average.

Nodaway County had fewer marriages in 1925 than in 1924, while the number of divorces more than doubled, according to figures just announced by the Department of Commerce.

In 1925, this county had 269 marriages, two fewer than in 1924, while divorces increased from 17 in 1924 to 38 in 1925. The ratio of divorces to marriages in 1925 was 18.2 per cent, while in 1924 it was 8.1 per cent.

In the state as a whole, the Commerce Department's figures, gathered from the recorder of deeds and the circuit clerk in each county, show that 38,949 marriages were performed in Missouri during 1925, as compared with 39,752 in 1924, represent a decrease of 803, or 2 per cent.

During 1925 there were 9,438 divorces granted in the state, as compared with 9,104 in 1924, representing an increase of 334, or 3.7 per cent.

The estimated population of Missouri on July 1, 1925, was 3,483,730, and on July 1, 1924, 3,469,845. On the basis of these estimates, the number of marriages per 1,000 of the population was 11.2 in 1925, as against 11.5 in 1924; and the number of divorces per 1,000 of the population was 2.71 in 1925, as against 2.62 in 1924.

The ratio of divorces to marriages in 1925 in the state as a whole was 24.2 per cent. Nodaway County thus having a smaller proportion of divorces than the state average.

Jasper county, which includes the city of Joplin, had the largest percentage of divorces of any county in the state. There, in 1925, there were 681 marriages and 413 divorces, practically two divorces for every three marriages. In 1924 there were 635 marriages and 401 divorces.

The divorce rate generally was higher in the cities than in the rural counties. St. Louis last year had 8,727 marriages and 2,925 divorces, a ratio of 1 to 3. Jackson county, with Kansas City, had 7,286 marriages and 2,350 divorces, nearly 1 to 2.

Osage county had only one divorce in 1925. Ste. Genevieve had only 3 in 1925 and 2 in 1924. DeKalb also had only 3.

Newton county, having less population than Nodaway, had 840 marriages in 1925 and 740 in 1924. Newton County is near both Kansas and Oklahoma and has many runaway marriages.

Statistics from other Northwest Missouri counties follow:

	Marriages		Divorces
County	1925	1924	1925	1924

Atchison	225	232	22	24

Corn Husking Delayed in Pickering Vicinity

Corn husking near Pickering has been delayed somewhat this week by the rain last Saturday and Sunday and by the blustery weather on Wednesday and Thursday. A few farmers have finished husking and many others have but a few days work yet, while others have hardly begun husking and have practically their whole crop to gather.

Considerable corn has been received at the Pickering elevator in the past ten days. The price Thursday was 51 cents per bushel, which is lower than was said last week.

This Morning Cold, But Not the Coldest

Nodaway County's temperature dropped to 18 degrees this morning. Yesterday the mercury's lowest ebb registered 23 above zero. The coldest of the season was 16 degrees, registered about two weeks ago.

To Missouri-Kansas Game.

Miss Frances Remus went to St. Joseph today, and accompanied by her sister, Miss Margaret Remus, an instructor in the St. Joseph schools, will leave this evening for Columbia where they will attend the Missouri-Kansas game tomorrow afternoon. They will be guests at the Delta Gamma House.

H. C. Todd Returns From Telephone Meet

Was Re-Elected as a Member of the Executive Committee—Radio Association Was Formed.

H. C. Todd, manager of the Hanamo Telephone Co., returned last evening from Kansas City where he attended a meeting of the Missouri Telephone association and also a meeting of the National Radio Program Service association. At the telephone meeting, Mr. Todd was re-elected as a member of the executive committee of the association.

Four states were represented at the telephone meeting and the president of the national association was in attendance.

The National Radio Program service association was just organized last month.

FIRE MENACES SCHOOL HOUSE

31 CHILDREN AT SCUDDER CLIMB TO SAFETY.

GO THROUGH WINDOWS

Flames Break Out in Cloak Room; Wraps Lost; Origin of Blaze Not Known; Little Damage.

Thirty-one children climbed their way to safety this morning through the windows of the Scudder School, five miles south of Maryville, when a fire started in the cloak room, blocking the entrance of the building with flames.

The fire was discovered when the teacher, L. L. King, and the pupils smelled clothing burning. The door to the cloak room was opened and the flames burst into the class room. With the assistance of passers by the teacher and pupils put out the fire before it had done great damage to the building.

The children's wraps comprised the greatest loss, perhaps, since most of them were badly damaged before the fire was discovered. The building was damaged some by fire and from chopping to make sure that all of the flames were extinguished.

The cause of the fire is unknown. A bonfire had been made in the school yard and it is possible that a spark on some child's clothing may have started the fire. It is possible too, it was reported, that a boy's pipe might have started the fire.

Maryville-Maysville Game Tied at Half

Bulletin.

Score at end of third quarter of the Maryville-Maysville game, 0 to 0.

Two evenly matched teams met this afternoon on the State Teachers College gridiron in Maryville High School's annual Homecoming football game with Maysville as the opponent. The first half ended 0-0.

Most of the play was in Maryville's territory, but this was largely because the Maysville eleven had the advantage of the wind. Neither team threatened seriously to score.

Weather Was Cold.

One of the coldest days of the season greeted Maryville and Maysville football teams as they met in the annual Homecoming game this afternoon on the College field.

It was spitting snow when the game began. The south stands were about half filled and many watched the game from cars.

In addition to the historical significance it is pointed out that the new city hall, under construction now, will be two blocks from the present City Hall Square.

MEXICO ANGRY AT U. S. STAND

BREAK IN DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS SEEN AS LIKELY.

SPLIT OVER NICARAGUA

Southern Republic Is Accused of Aiding Revolutionists in Central America.

Mexico City, Nov. 19.—An angry editorial in which the newspaper Excelsior discussed relations between the United States and Nicaragua was interpreted in some quarters here today as semi-official and preliminary to severance of diplomatic relations.

So far, there have been no official statements regarding the United States allegations that Mexicans have violated their international obligations by assisting the liberal revolutionary party in Nicaragua, except Foreign Minister Saenz's denials that there has been any official Mexican assistance afforded the revolutionists.

"The authors of the shameful Bryan-Chamorro treaty," said the Excelsior, referring to a treaty negotiated with Nicaragua while the late William Jennings Bryan was Secretary of State, "has been sustained in power through the armed aid of the United States."

The Excelsior charged that elections in Nicaragua always have been dominated by United States Marines, who, until recently, sustained with bayonets a government that unreservedly described itself as conservative.

"Now," continued the editorial, "North American Marines are ready to go again to Nicaragua to help the Diaz-Chamorro regime, which is in danger because of the liberal revolution."

Washington, Nov. 19.—The United States may be led to intervene in the Nicaraguan revolution at the request of the new conservative government to prevent alleged Mexican aid to the Liberal rebels and to crush alleged Communist plots.

Secretary of State Kellogg's statement, recognizing Adolfo Diaz, conservative, and showing alarm over "outside interference" was followed by Nicaraguaun press reports that Diaz is requesting United States assistance to prevent alleged Mexican gun-running for the revolutionists.

This government is known to view with gravity information in its possession proporting to prove that five vessels, including the Mexican government ship Jalisco, are carrying Mexican arms to the Nicaraguan and Guatemalean rebels with alleged connivance of Mexican officials.

In a veiled reference to Mexico, Kellogg said Nicaraguan revolt had "invited interference from outside sources, a state of affairs which must cause concern to every friend of stability in Central America."

The State Department's recognition followed soon after the election by the Nicaraguan congress of Diaz as provisional president, following resignation of General Chamorro, from whom American recognition was witheld because he seized power by force.

The liberal rebels, who are reported setting up a rival government, with alleged Mexican aid, charge that Diaz is a tool of Chamorro and New York bankers, and that the liberal government unseated by Chamorro is the only legal regime.

United States marines are now occupying Bluefields, Nicaragua, and American battleships are on guard on both coasts of that country.

Bombs Again Used in Illinois County

Gangsters Hurl Three Explosive Missels At Home Of West City Mayor —No One Injured.

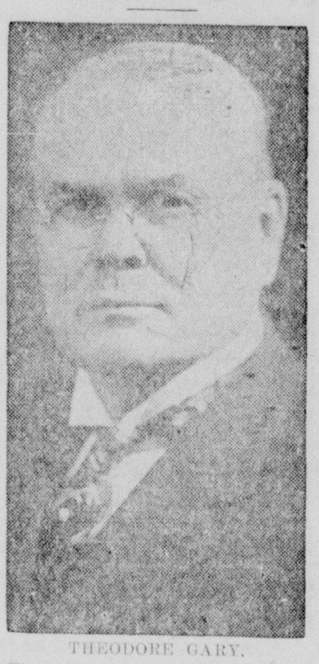
West Frankfort, Ill., Nov. 19.—Gangsters' bombs rocked Franklin county again today, when a group of men, riding in a motor car, whirled by the home of Mayor Joe Adams, of West City, and hurled three bombs at the house.

Although the bombs shattered the glass in the house and did considerable damage to the front, neither the mayor nor his wife and brother, Gus Adams, were injured.

Last week, three carloads of gangsters drove by the Adams home and poured a machine gun fire into houses on either side of the mayor's residence.

Mrs. R. E. Thomas, Mrs. D. A. Appleby and Robert Gallagher are spending the day in St. Joseph.

Will Resign



THEODORE GARY.

GARY TO QUIT HIGHWAY JOB

GOVERNOR ADMITS COMMISSION CHAIRMAN WILL RESIGN.

URGED TO FINISH TIME

G. U. Philley Of St. Joseph Is Mentioned As Probable Successor As Head Of Road Building.

Kansas City, Nov. 19.—Members of the State Highway Commission were meeting here this afternoon with Theodore Gary, chairman, to discuss a permanent highway policy.

It was believed Gary would announce his expected resignation after the conference. The commission was expected to announce its attitude toward the suggestion for an additional bond issue of 100 million dollars for highway construction.

Jefferson City, Nov. 19.—Theodore Gary of Kansas City will soon submit his resignation as chairman of the State Highway Commission.

Governor Baker said yesterday that Gary had discussed with him the matter of resigning. The Governor urged him to serve out his term, which expires Dec. 6, 1929. Gary has been chairman of the commission five years. The Governor said that the commission would meet today in Kansas City but asserted he did not know when Gary's resignation would be submitted. In Kansas City Gary refused to discuss the matter, referring to the questioner to the Governor.

For the last year Gary has been considering resigning. It has been known he would quit before the convening of the Legislature in January.

C. U. Philley, member of the St. Joseph Police Commission, is the only person mentioned thus far as successor to Gary.

E. B. Clements, Macon, Improving in Health

St. Louis, Nov. 19.—E. B. Clements, Macon, Mo., member of the Republican national committee for Missouri, who has been seriously ill for the last two weeks, was improved today, hospital officials announced.

Bobbed Hair Causes Prosperity for Some

Berlin, Nov. 19.—While the fashion of bobbed hair has dealt a stunning blow to manfacturers of hairnets and hairpins, other industries have profited from the style. Thus, the Solinger Steel Goods factories report unprecedented prosperity, owing to big sales of hair-cutting appliances, used especially for bobbing.

Charles R. Gaugh is sick at his home with la grippe and was some better today. J. W. Koch of St. Joseph arrived Wednesday night to take his place in the Gaugh & Evans drug store during his absence.

MARIE URGES MORE SPEED

QUEEN ANXIOUS TO GET HOME BEFORE KING'S DEATH.

FEARS DEMONSTRATION

Nicholas Leaves Royal Party to Visit Detroit Automobile Plants and Cleveland.

Aboard Queen Marie's train, en route to New York, Nov. 19.—Queen Marie today began her journey back to New York and Rumania.

Excited by the message she has received from her country relating to the seriousness of King Ferdinand's physical condition, her majesty requested railroad and civic officials to expedite her passage to Bucharest, in order that she might prevent any possible political demonstration antagonistic to the present regime, in case of her husband's death.

According to present plans, Queen Marie will arrive in New York Saturday morning. She expects to leave immediately for Tuxedo Park, N. Y., where she will spend the time before the Berengaria sails at the home of Charles G. Mitchell, banker.

Prince Nicholas will leave the train at Cincinnati to enjoy a visit to Detroit automobile plants. He plans to rejoin the party at New York after visiting Cleveland Sunday.

Two Students Freed of Murder Suspicion

H. R. Moore and Gilbert Kimball, of U. of M. Had No Part in Death of Cashier, Jury Finds.

Jefferson City, Nov. 19.—Two University of Missouri students, H. R. Moore and Gilbert Kimball, had no part in the murder of James Dickinson, 63-year-old bank cashier, according to the report of a coroner's jury.

The jury, meeting at Cedar City, near Jefferson City, reported that Dickinson, whose body was found on the Missouri river bridge near here Wednesday, "met death at the hands of parties, unknown." Dickinson was cashier at the Mokane Bank at Mokane, Mo.

Moore and Kimball, when arrested, admitted they saw the body as they crossed the bridge but they did not stop because they feared a bandit ruse. Both were released today.

Eight bodies had been brought out two hours later.

The maritime bureau estimated the dead at twenty-one to twenty-five.

More than $700 was received from the annual bazaar of the Ladies Aid Society of the First Methodist Church yesterday. The final accounting will be larger, however, as other amounts have not yet been turned in. As a result of yesterday's affair, Mrs. T. B. Mumma, treasurer of the society, gave a check for $600 to C. F. Remus, treasurer of the church building fund, today to be applied on the society's pledge of $1,000.

THE COMING INDUSTRIAL FUEL?

George B. Cortelyou, President of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York, quotes some interesting figures pertaining to the manufactured gas industry. He says:

"Gas consumption is generally classified as domestic, industrial and commercial, the last two being frequently grouped together. In 1915, the amount of gas used as a fuel in the industries was but a small percentage of the total output, while in 1925 it is estimated that more than one-quarter of the total went to supply the industrial and commercial demand, which in the 11 years increased over 1,000 per cent. The domestic load, which is still the backbone of the industry, shows a steady annual increase.

"This remarkable evidence of the adaptability of gas to the uses of industry indicates one of the directions in which great future expansions may be expected; for, notwithstanding the large gains already recorded, it is probable that as yet gas is carrying less than 10 per cent of the total industrial load available. Given favorable rate and service conditions, the advantages of gas are so pronounced that its use as an industrial fuel may easily take the lead over all its other uses."

HOT DOGS IN ENGLAND.

England has yielded to the "hot dog" habit. It would hardly be more amazing to hear that English aristocrats were chewing gum.

The Englishmen held out nobly, but they had to succumb sooner or later, and their surrender came with the advent of cold weather at sporting events. So great is the new demand for this historic Coney Island delicacy that a big company has been organized in London, called "Hot Dog Limited," with a charter authorizing it to "manufacture and deal in a comestible known in the United States of America under the name of 'hot dog.'"

That name has been harder for the English people to swallow than the article itself. For a long time they insisted on referring to it as "a sausage and a roll, with mustard." But finally English common sense triumphed and the shortier uglier term was accepted.

Nobody need grudge the "comestible" to England. In a way, it is only repaying a national debt contracted long ago, when the Earl of Sandwich invented the basic which bears his name and America borrowed it.

A POOR BUSNIESS.

Our bandits are pikers, even at their best. It was reckoned a red-letter day for the bandit profession recently when, within 24 hours, there were five American banks robbed, and loot was taking amounting to $202,000.

On the same day, the money honestly earned by decent American citizens amounted, by a moderate estimate, to 300,000 times that much.

There isn't anything in banditry, as a regular business.

HOW A CIVILIZATION DIED.

The fate of the ancient Pueblo Indians, whose ruined cities sprinkled the Southwest, is explained at last. They were not exterminated, but committed "community suicide" by deforestation.

This is the conclusion of Neil H. Judd, archeologist of the Smithsonian Institution, who has spent six years studying the old ruins at Pueblo Bonito in New Mexico. He finds that the area occupied by a thriving race perhaps 1,000 years ago was then not barren and dry as it is today, but well wooded and fertile. The inhabitants cut down the trees with their stone axes and used the timber for dwellings and fuel until the surface of the earth was entirely denuded. Then, with no woods to store the moisture, gullies formed and the soil was swept away and the fields had to be abandoned, and the waning population finally moved away and disappeared.

For a century, modern Americans have been trying very hard to do, on a continental scale, what those primitive Indians did. Fortunately at last our people have awakened to the error of their way, and are beginning to use more thrifty timbering methods and replace cut timber with new trees.

POISON GAS IN THE GARAGE.

Coroner Vitt has issued a timely warning against running an automobile engine in a closed garage. During the summer the motorists are not likely to expose themselves to this danger, but in cold weather they occasionally do, with the possible result of death from carbon monoxide poisoning. Thus every year a number of fatalities are caused by the operation of automobiles in addition to the long list of traffic fatalties.

The warning cannot be too often repeated that even a small amount of carbon monoxide gas, from the motor exhaust, may be deadly. In fact, the mistake of the motorist who closes his garage doors and runs the engine to provide warmth is about on a par with the mistake of the man who blows out the gas in a gas-lighted sleeping room. It is only a little less risky than using a match to see if there is enough gasoline in the tank.

Poison has killed many in war, and among the millions of motorists in the country it might take a larger number of lives than it actually does if safety workers and others did not from time to time remind the public of the menace. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Being Chaperoned in School Not Bad, Says President's Son

Amherst, Mass., Nov. 19.—Being chaperoned while getting educated isn't half so bad as it sounds, according to John Coolidge, son of the President.

Col. Edward Starling, White House sleuth, who came here from Washington a few weeks ago to serve as his "bodyguard", has proved a help rather than a handicap, John indicated plainly in a talk with the United Press.

"It isn't true that I have to go to bed earlier nowadays," said John, commenting on a report he said he had heard to this effect. "I don't go to bed early one night a week," he added, with a slight show of indignation. "I have to do a lot of studying and I seldom go to bed before twelve."

John pictured colonel Starling more as a companion than a chaperone and declared there was no "iron hand" in the latter's watchfulness over him.

The colonel himself seemed to confirm the reputed success of the chaperonage, remarking that he did not believe it would be necessary for him to remain at Amherst much longer.

Says Standardization Foe to Creative Work

Appleton, Wis., Nov. 19.—Intricate organization of modern society and our present highly standardized mode of living are the two greatest barriers to creative work, Dr. Rollo W. Brown, lecturer and former exchange professor of Harvard University told students of Lawrence College.

"The only way life changes is through creation," Dr. Brown declared, "and first among the factors opposing creation is our standardized mode of living. Because a person is a variant, and a creator, he is regarded by society as a freak or even insane."

TRAFFIC ALSO IN BAD MONEY

BOOTLEGGERS HAVE A SIDELINE. GOVERNMENT FINDS.

DEFRAUD EACH OTHER

Many Of Counterfeit Bills Are Used To Buy Rum. But Some Get Into General Circulation.

Washington, Nov. 19.—The United States secret service has unearthed a serious counterfeiting plot among master bootleggers.

It became known recently sleuths had corralled one bootlegger with sixty-one $100 bills, part of the output of a ring engaged in making spurious money wherewith to traffic in rum.

Evidence so far unearthed leads the powerful secret service under Chief W. H. Moran to believe it can run down more of the bootlegger-counterfeiters who not only cheat each other with false money but put some in general circulation.

But their task is perilous and difficult. Moran believes that government operatives who go into underworld districts after counterfeiters are suspected of being prohibition officers and are doubly watched by liquor law violaters and counterfeiters.

To combat this new development, Moran will probably request Congress to increase the secret service personnel.

As the new counterfeiting developments became known treasury employes were detailed to destroy the spoils of the secret service raids during the year.

More than $500,000 worth of spurious paper money was chopped up into pulp; 20,000 false coins of various denomination were destroyed; and more than two tons of miscellaneous counterfeiting paraphenalia consisting of printing press, dyes, paper, cameras, forms, acids, dies and pictures for photographing were destroyed.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington.—Political wiseacres may shout that Calvin Coolidge will not run again for president in 1928, but Uncle John Wilder thinks he will.

Uncle John is violinist in the Coolidge orchestra from the president's home town, Plymouth, Vt.

"None of us has the slightest doubt that Cal will run again for president in 1928," says Uncle John, who is a relative of the president. "He's the people's president, isn't he? Business has been good, I guess, and there isn't any reason for a change, is there?"

The third term bogey means nothing to the old home town. Didn't Colonel John Coolidge, single-handed, manage Plymouth for 12 years?

The 14 Plymouthites touring the country in vaudeville are "seeing the sights," but their desire to help the president amounts to a burning zeal.

The private opinion of Herb Moore, the president's second cousin, is that the troupe is doing Plymouth's distinguished son "a tremendous amount of good." Moore is the show's leader, announcer and prompter.

"We're going to keep his name before the people," Herb explained. "Our act gives a better idea of the sort of place he was born and brought up in."

A thorough Scalding Rinse is the secret

WOULDN'T you like to keep that original snowy-white delicate freshness in your fine linens and dainty under-garments instead of helplessly watching them turn gray after a few washings? You can keep them like new—but not alone by thorough washing. Much also depends upon the rinsing—rinsing in scalding water in such a way that the ugly gray scum which floats on the rinse water is kept from clinging to the fabric.

Nodaway Township Valuation $3,311,240

Burlington Junction Real Estate Valued at $496,250—Outside That City $2,507,085.

(Burlington Junction Post).

The total valuation of the real estate and personal property in Nodaway township for taxable purposes is $3,311,240, according to the assessment books of James Greenelsh, township assessor, who finished his work on the 1926 assessment last week.

The total valuation of real estate in the township is $3,003,335, which is divided as follows: Real estate in township outside of Burlington Junction, $2,507,085; real estate in Burlington Junction, $496,250.

The personal property valuation is $307,905, of which $118,695 is in Burlington Junction and $189,210 in the township outside the city.

There are 474 horses in the township valued at $33,300; 103 head of mules with a valuation of $7,895; 1686 head of cattle assessed at $63,110; 1,581 head of hogs at $25,269 and 222 sheep valued at $1,110.

The valuation is considered less than the total of the 1925 assessment, but is in line with trend of the times, as it is the general opinion that assessments are yet high enough on most property.

The assessment is subject to revision by the Board of Equalization.

Sarcoxie Man Leaves His Estate to Poor

Sarcoxie, Mo., Nov. 19.—The major portion of the estate of Ludwig H. Stebbins, farmer who died recently, will go for the support of the Sarcoxie poor people, it was learned when his will was filed here.

In addition to making generous contributions to the poor Stebbins left a considerable amount of money for piping water to Stebbins Park, which he had already dedicated to the city.

12,000 MILES U. S. AIRWAYS

MAJOR CENTERS TO BE CONNECTED BY JULY 1.

ENCOURAGE AVIATION

Commercial Air Fleet Sought—Would Give Government Fundamental Military Reserve.

Washington, Nov. 19.—By the first of July the major centers of the country will be connected by 12,000 miles of airways, Assistant Commerce Secretary MacCracken in charge of commercial aviation, said in the Department's annual report today.

More than 7,000 miles of airways are now in use, MacCracken said, and 5,000 additional will be ready by the end of the present fiscal year for the transportation of mail, passengers and express.

MacCracken said the Department had made rapid advances in stimulating interest in commercial aviation and revealed that all air mail routes of the Post Office Department were slated for private operation sometime this year.

"The work of the Department in development of the new aviation division," he said, "has during the past fiscal year been of preparatory order like that in the industry. It may be said, however, that already commercial operations have been undertaken in reliance on the provisions of the air commerce act in a number of directions and it seems certain that the Post Office Department will be able to let contracts which will relieve it of all transportation of the air mail during the present fiscal year. It will thus convert a very large postal loss into certain postal profit."

"The purpose of the Government has been three-fold, first, to secure better development of this new form of transportation for commercial purpose; second, to create private commercial services which can relieve the Post Office of its direct expenditure upon air mail; and thrill, by the creation of a large commercial air fleet with its accompanying personnel and its background of the manufacturing industry to give a fundamental military reserve to the country."

12 Arrests Made by Game Warden

Five Are For Shooting at Night.—Warning Is Issued to Trappers and Fur Dealers.

Twelve arrests for violation of the state game and fish laws have been made in the last two weeks by John A. Wallace, deputy game warden for this district, he announced today.

Five of the arrests, Mr. Wallace said, were for shooting before sunrise and after sunset, both of which are prohibited by the state law. The other arrests were for trapping fur bearing animals out of season and for hunting without licenses.

The trapping out of season is taking most of the attention of the game warden and his deputies at this time, Mr. Wallace stated. The trapping for fur bearing animals, he pointed out, is prohibited except between December and January 31. He warned also that dealers are not permitted to buy furs which have been trapped out of season, under penalty of fine and forfeiture of their licenses.

The next activity of the game wardens, Mr. Wallace said, would be to enforce the provision in the law which prohibits catching of fish while the streams are covered with ice.

Modern Styles Ruin Business of Rag Man

Nebraska City, Neb., Nov. 19.—A new critic of the abbreviated styles of the American woman's dress has been found in the ragman. He said the new styles were ruining his business.

"My business is all shot to pieces and the only reason is the scantiness of women's clothes," the ragman said. "A fellow could get a nice piece of money for a petticoat at one time. Now show me the home where a petticoat is owned.

"There ain't enough cloth in a modern underskirt to make a good rag for cleaning an automobile," he said.

URGES 8-HOUR DAY ON FARM

FARMERS WORK TOO HARD, SAYS AGRICULTURAL EXPERT.

AN OVER-PRODUCTION

"Reduce Numbers Or Take Things More Leisurely," Warns C. G. Williams Of Ohio.

Washington, Nov. 19.—With some labor and industrial captains calling for a five-day week in factories, C. G. Williams, president of the American Association of Agronomy, today warned farmers that they ought to adopt the eight-hour day.

In an interview with the United Press, this famous agricultural expert said farmers now overwork, with the result that farming—like some other industries—is over producing. This over-production, he said, means only that the farmers gets too little for his output, without benefiting humanity by his toil.

"Farmers are putting in too many hours work," Williams, director of the Ohio State experiment station, said. "The country will either have to have fewer farmers or the present group of soil tillers will have to take things more leisurely.

"Should the amount of agricultural products decline, farmers would receive higher prices for their commodities and at the same time work less. There would be no shortage of food and consumers would not suffer, for it would just be the long looked for solution of putting agriculture on a plane with other business.

"America has not reached the point of consuming all foodstuffs produced and that period is many years off," Williams said. "We are producing more today with 25 per cent of the nation's population engaged in farming than fifty years ago, when 50 per cent of the people made their livelihood from agriculture," he said.

"With the present-day farm machinery, three men can do the work that required twenty laborers fifty years ago. New farm machinery inventions are being created almost daily. The mechanical devices assure the world it will not starve to death even if many farm laborers leave the agricultural district for white collar jobs in the cities, for there will be machinery to take their places."

A Message From West.

The following message was received from the Rev. Samuel Grundy Fisher, pastor of the First Christian Church at Bellingham, Washington:

"It would give me much pleasure to be with you on your homecoming day. Distance makes that impossible, at least so far as my personal presence is concerned.

"However, I am glad to send to you these my heartiest best wishes for a great time, for increased efficiency and prosperity, for the health, wealth and happiness of my old home town school. I remember always with gratitude the teachers and students of other days, for from all of them I received a rich treasure.

"And way out here where the West begins and ends, Maryville High School boys and girls have penetrated and are making their good impress on the developing communities."

This afternoon the students and alumni attended the football game with Maysville and tonight the day will close with a movie benefit at the Missouri Theater, which all students and alumni are being urged to attend.

Thanksgiving services for all Protestant Churches will be held at the Presbyterian Church at 7:30 o'clock Thanksgiving night. The change from Wednesday to Thursday for the night of the service has been made since Thursday is the day designated by official proclamation and too, more persons will be able to attend the service on Thursday, it is believed.

The Rev. R. E. Musgrave, president of the Ministerial Alliance, will preside, and will read the President's Proclamation. The Rev. C. C. James will read the Bible lesson. The Rev. W. N. Dewar will lead in prayer. The Rev Guy L. Prather will deliver the sermon. The music will be furnished by the Presbyterian choir.

This is the second of the series dealing with the problems raised by Truslow Adams article, "Our Dissolving Ethics," in the Atlantic Monthly for November, and the series of articles running in the Red Book entitled "Our Moral Revolt," by Judge Ben Lindsey. The articles referred to above deal with a new trend of modern morality. Solo by Catherine Gray.

Read Joshua 24.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

A friend once told me that he was a Hell-Scared Christian. He was a good Christian at that and lived a decent life. He meant that a hell of fire and brimstone was always before his eyes and he did not want to go there.

I have often wondered how many church members are on the rolls just because they are afraid. It always seemed to me that this kind of a man was simply trying to take out a fire insurance policy.

At that I would rather be a hell-scared Christian than not to be a Christian at all. Yet this kind of Christianity does not appeal to me. I am like a great many others who refuse to be scared. The kind of a God who has set up a great furnace and turned on the gas until it is seven times hotter than an ordinary fire and then tells to do thus and so or he will throw me into that furnace, does not appeal to me.

My God is a loving God who gives me every chance in the world to be a good and useful man, who smiles when I approach excellence in any way and who sympathizes when I fall down and wants me to come back and try it over.

My notion about God and life is that it is up to every one to do the very best possible with life, to make his own choice without the fear of punishment or the hope of reward.

This, it seems to me, was in the mind of Joshua when he gathered the Israelites together at Shechem and made his farewell address. The keynote of his speech was "Choose you this day whom ye will serve" and he added a very effective sentence "but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Joshua had been the leader of the band of adventurers who were driving out other peoples and making homes for themselves and building cities and building a nation. When Joshua died he was 110 years old and the work was not done. The conquest of Canaan covered a period of 200 years and Joshua was at the beginning and was the leader for forty or fifty years. A better account of this period is found in the book of Judges.

Just before he died Joshua called a great assembly of his people at Shechem. All his Generals and Captains and his commanders of hundreds and tens were present. The Levites were there and had a special place close to the platform. They all knew that Joshua could not command very much longer and were prepared for his speech which was a farewell address. Moses had made a similar address. Great leaders since that time have delivered similar speeches and all are patterned in the same way. Joshua reviewed the campaigns which had been made under his leadership, recounted the incidents of fifty years of war. He went back and reviewed the history of the people from Abraham and brought it down to date. Then he analyzed the situation in the light of that history and drew conclusions for the future and in warning words told what would happen if the people departed from the worship of God. Joshua stressed the care of God over his people, the promises of God to them and finally in a climax demanded.

"Choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were beyond the river, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell; but as for me and my house, we will serve Jehovah."

It was a fine climax. There was silence for a moment and then a great cheering. I think Caleb was on the front row and that he sprang to his feet and led the response. The people were moved. It was like a revival sweeping over the crowd. Some wept and all were carried away. Then and there they made a solemn promise to serve the God who had taken care of them.

Good resolutions are fine. It is better to have resolved and broken that resolution than never to have resolved at all. Men rarely turn square about and walk the chalk line of a new resolution. Most of us resolve and fall down and resolve again and repeat the operation many times. But each time the will to follow the right path is strengthened a little and as we grow older our lives find the paths. It is easy to go from one level to another, each one a little lower than the other, until suddenly we find ourselves appalled at the depths to which we have fallen. It is harder to [illegible] grade and neither elevation [illegible] accomplished in a day.

Joshua presented the doctrine of free will. He said to his people, "It's up to you," make your own choice. If you would have a happy life and a strong nation choose the gods who have always taken care of you and who have given us this fair land. If you choose otherwise you are on the down hill grade.

In spite of their unanimous resolution that day the Israelites fell many times. We would have suspected the accuracy of the history if it had recored a different story, a story of no backsliding and of an always faithful people who never forgot the good resolution of the day when Joshua delivered his farewell address. I believe in New Years resolutions. Most of them are broken the first month of the year but most of them do not amount to much anyhow. The making of the resolution shows that your conscience is still active and responsive.

THE VALUE OF COVENANTS

(Joshua 24: 14-25.

14 Now therefore fear the Lord and serve him in sincerity and in truth: and put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood and in Egypt; and serve ye the Lord.

15. And if it seem evil unto you to serve the Lord, choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.

16. And the people answered and said, God forbid that we should forsake the Lord, to serve other gods;

17. For the Lord our God, he it is that brought us up and our fathers out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage, and which did those great signs in our sight, and preserved us in all the way wherein we went, and among all the people through whom we passed:

18. And the Lord drove out from before us all the people, even the Amorites which dwelt in the land: therefore will we also serve the Lord; for he is our God.

19. And Joshua said unto the people, Ye cannot serve the Lord: for he is an holy God; he is a jealous God; he will not forgive your transgressions nor your sins.

20. If ye forsake the Lord, and serve strange Gods, then he will turn and do you hurt, and consume you, after that he hath done you good.

21. And the people said unto Joshua Nay; but we will serve the Lord.

22. And Joshua said unto the people, Ye are witnesses against yourselves that ye have chosen you the Lord, to serve him. And they said, We are witnesses.

23. Now therefore put away, said he, the strange gods which are among you, and incline your hearts unto the Lord God of Israel.

24. And the people said unto Joshua, The Lord our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey.

25. So Joshua made a covenant with the people that day, and set them a statute and an ordinance in Shechem.

Golden Text.—"Choose you this day whom ye will serve; . . . but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."—Joshua 24:15.

A wise pastor from his own experience or from some single incident penned these lines which seem to me to be worth reproducing here. I am not inclined to reproduce poetry in these letters for poetry quoted is usualyy used by writers as fillers. Out of his wisdom, the wisdom of years came this:

He came to my desk with a quivering lip,
The lesson was done;
'Dear teacher, I want a new leaf,' he said,
'I have spoiled this one.'
In the place of the leaf so stained and blotted,
I gave him a new one, all unspotted.
And into his sad eyes smiled,
'Do better now, my child.'
I went to the throne with a sin stained soul.
The old year was done;
'Dear Father, hast thou a new leaf for me?
I have spoiled this one.'
He took the old leaf, stained and blotted,
And gave me a new one, all unspotted,
And into my sad heart smiled,
'Do better now, my child.'

Many years passed after the death of Joshua before the Israelites completely occupied the land which had been their objective. It was not until the time of David, the king, that the conquest was complete. In that time they had many ups and downs, they strayed from the true religion, they went away after false gods, and every time their progress was delayed, they paid dearly. But they made the grade. They kept, after a fashion, the pledge made at Shechem. When they finally failed the kingdom was destroyed.

The United States is a Christian nation. Its foundations are laid on a pledge to God. It is woven into our laws.

Choose this day whom you will serve. If you would serve Booze, choose Booze. If you will serve God choose God. But as for me and my house we will obey the law.

DRY VICTORY IS DECISIVE

OFFICIAL COUNT SHOWS MAJORITY OF 265,543.

LARGER THAN IN 1920

Statement by Citizens Organization Against Proposition No. 4 Declares Prohibition Is Popular.

The official count of the votes cast in the recent general election in Missouri shows the victory of the "drys" more overwhelming than was at first indicated, according to a statement issued by the executive committee of the Citizens' Organization Against Proposition No. 4.

Calling attention to the official announcement that the majority against Proposition No. 4 was 265,543, the executive committee says:

"A comparison of the vote with the vote on the same issue in 1920 shows conclusively that the people of Missouri, in ever increasing numbers, are accepting prohibition as the fixed and permanent policy of the State and country. In 1920 we voted on the adoption of a State enforcement act. At this election we voted on the repeal of the act. The issue was therefore identical.

The results of the two elections are as follows:

	1920	1926
Total vote cast on the Proposition	902,000	864,000
Total dry vote:	482,000	570,000
Total wet vote:	421,000	295,000
Dry majority:	61,000	275,000
Dry percentage of total vote:	53	65
Wet majority in St. Louis:	106,000	62,000
Dry majority outside of St. Louis:	168,000	337,000
Increase dry majority outside of St. Louis:		44,000
Increases dry majority outside of St. Louis:		169,000
Increase of dry majority in State:		214,000

"This vote," the committee contends, "unmistakably shows that in the rural sections where prohibition is reasonably well enforced, the people like and want to retain it. The people have voted to retain the law for the whole State. Does it not, therefore, become our duty to observe and enforce it in every section of the State? While the 18th Amendment stands, no State has a moral right to refuse to co-operate in the enforcement of its provisions, and we may well ask whether any City or County has the right to refuse to co-operate in the enforcement of a State law which is approved and upheld by such an overwhelming majority.

"It is now our solemn duty to go forward in the effort to secure a more general observance and a more vigorous enforcement of the prohibition policy throughout Missouri."

PASTOR TELLS OF CONVENTION

HOSPITALITY OF SOUTH IS OUTSTANDING.

CHANGE MEETING TIME

May, 1928 Is Date For Next International Gathering; Extensive Publicity Given.

The Rev. R. E. Musgrave, pastor of the Christian Church, returned last night for Memphis, Tenn., where he attended the international convention of the Disciples of Christ.

The following account and comments on the trip are made by the Reverend Musgrave:

"Memphis is a city of 250,000. A large number of these are negroes. Memphis is truly a southern city. Negroes are used to do all the the ordinary labor, both in doors and out. They are used exclusively at the large loading docks on the Mississippi River. The Civil War put an end to slavery but it did not change the minds of the white population of the south, regarding the negro. He is still, in a very large way, the beast of burden.

"There were about 3,300 registered delegates at the International Convention from almost every country on earth. Many hundreds were in attendance who did not register. At the communion service Sunday afternoon it was estimated that 10,000 were in attendance.

"The convention sessions were held in the new City Hall, one of the most modern to be found anywhere. Numerous small rooms and small auditoriums seating from fifty to several thousand make it an ideal building to hold any kind of a convention. The large auditorium is equipped with a loud speaker so that any voice can be heard clearly in any part of the room, which seats 10,000 people.

"The hotels are very fine, the three largest are owned by a company and these hotels are modern to the last word in hotel construction.

"The hospitality of the south is seen at its best in Memphis. The daily papers gave more space to convention news than any city in which an International Convention has previously been held. For instance, the pulpits of all protestant bodies were filled last Sunday morning by visiting pastors and missionaries. The Commercial Appeal, a great Memphis daily, printed a 600 word extract from each sermon in its Monday issue. Such liberal space was never before given to our convention preachers."

It was decided to change the meeting time of future conventions to the spring of the year instead of the fall. Consequently the next convention will be held in May, 1928. The place for the meeting has not been determined. Seattle and Atlantic City are among the cities which have asked for the meeting.

Musgrave Will Give "Convention Echoes"

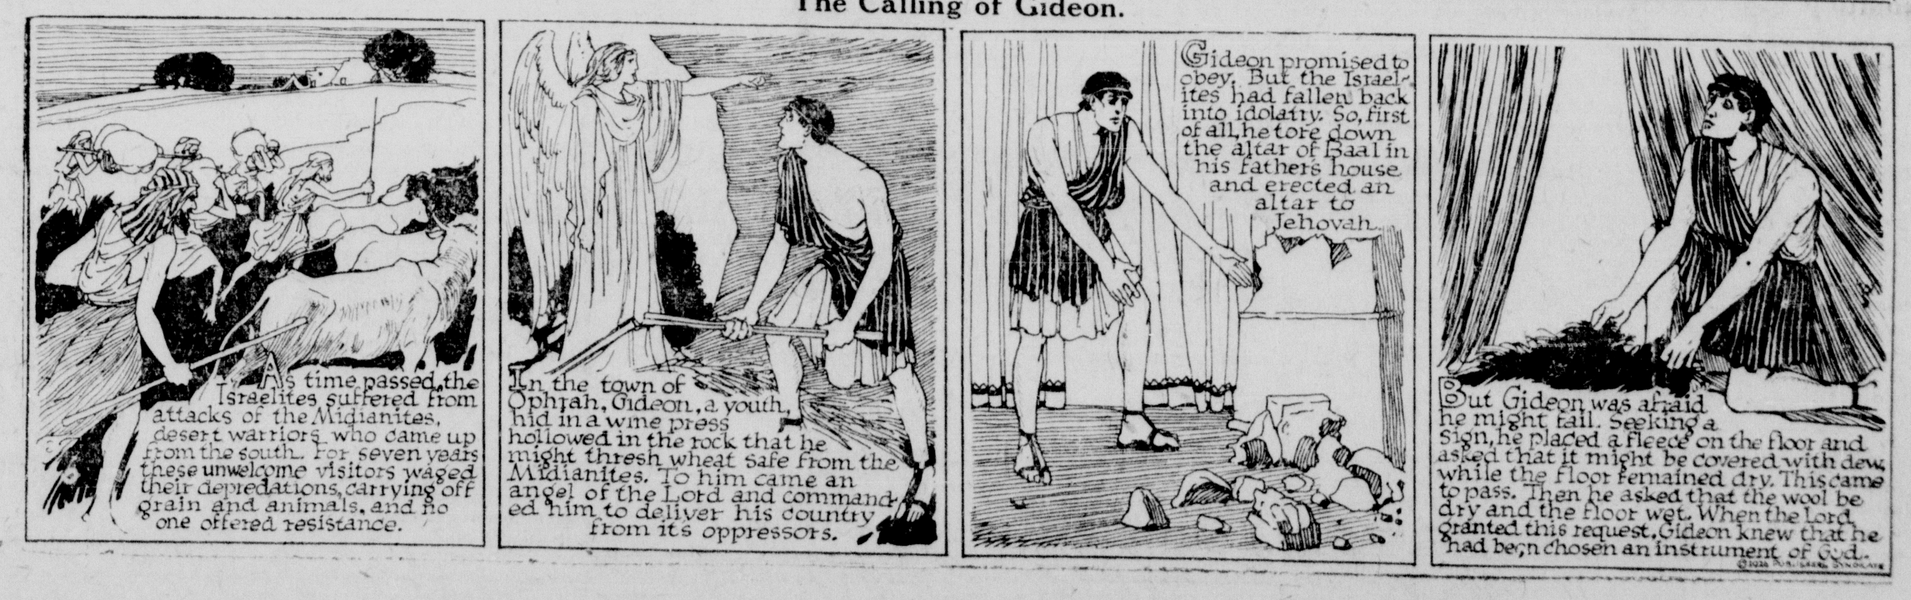
The Rev. R. E. Musgrave will give "Convention Echoes" at the morning service at the Christian Church Sunday.

At the men's class, Sunday morning, features in Taubman's class at the Memphis convention last Sunday.

"Other Things About the International Convention" will be the subject of the sermon in the evening.

DRAMATIC EVENTS IN BIBLE HISTORY : : By Harlowe R. Hoyt and Walter Scott

The Calling of Gideon.



As time passed, the Israelites suffered from attacks of the Midianites, desert warriors who came up from the south. For seven years these unwelcome visitors waged their depredations, carrying off grain and animals, and no one offered resistance.
In the town of Ophrah, Gideon, a youth, hid in a wine press hollowed in the rock that he might thresh wheat safe from the Midianites. To him came an angel of the Lord and commanded him to deliver his country from its oppressors.
Gideon promised to obey. But the Israelites had fallen back into idolatry. So, first of all, he tore down the altar of Baal in his father's house and erected an altar to Jehovah.
But Gideon was afraid he might fail. Seeking a sign, he placed a fleece on the floor and asked that it might be covered with dew, while the floor remained dry. This came to pass. Then he asked that the wool be dry and the floor wet. When the Lord granted this request, Gideon knew that he had been chosen an instrument of God.

JUDITH MARTIN, a young teacher at Pendleton University, is admired by ERIC WATERS, bolshevistic senior, and DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor.

MYRA ALDRICH, a spoiled beauty living at Judith's boarding house, hates Judith because of Eric's attentions to her.

Dr. Dorn, a co-worker with DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN on the discipline committee, disapproves of Judith's student friends.

With Eric, Judith gets into numerous scrapes, among them a dinner at a roadhouse which is raided and a moonlight hike from which she is compelled to accept a ride home with "KITTY" SHEA, town ruffian, because Eric has drunk too much.

Dean Brown tells her that his wife is going to visit friends in a small town upstate, but Judith sees her in the city hotel where Judith has gone for a week end of relaxation. Mrs. Brown is escorted by a handsome man.

When she returns to Pendleton, Eric gets off the same train and Dean Brown sees them together. Mrs. Brown sends for Judith and throws herself and her secret on her mercy. Judith assures her she will not speak of having seen her in town.

During this conversation, the dean comes home and says sneeringly, "I trust you and Mr. Waters enjoyed your week-end trip, Miss Martin."

Judith leaves the house in anger. On the way home she is accosted by "KITTY" SHEA, a town ruffian, who threatens to tell of seeing her dining at a roadhouse with Eric some time before, just before the place was raided. Shea is frightened away by two men students.

Judith is awakened by a noise on the porch that night and, opening the front door, catches Myra in her arms.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Judith bent over the unconscious girl. "Myra," she whispered, but there was no answer. Only a stertorous breathing came from between the parted lips, and the fumes of alcohol hung heavily about her.

Judith shifted Myra's weight and began the laborious ascent. Near the top of the stairs, the light from above fell on the closed eyelids. Myra stirred and clenched one hand over her chest. "Fire!" she murmured and began to cry weakly.

The struggle seemed interminable but at last Judith staggered into Myra's room and laid her burden on the bed. She began to pull off her outer clothing, stopping now and then to chafe her wrists and temples.

Myra sat up, crying "Fire!" again and clutching at her heart. "Judith, I'm burning. Water!"

Judith left her with her head buried in the pillows, feebly sobbing. She came back with her electric percolator in moment. She was pouring out a cup of steaming black coffee when Myra began to pray. "Please God, don't let me die, with this fire in my stomach. What'll Eric do if I die? Oh, I forgot. Eric doesn't care." Her muttering trailed off in a long wail.

Judith forced her to take the coffee, supporting her with one hand and holding the cup in the other.

Myra looked at her curiously, and Judith smiled faintly. Myra caught the smile and began to cry brokenheartedly. "You're laughing at me. Everybody's laughing at me. And I'm going to die."

Judith began running through the pages of the University directory, looking for the medical division.

"What are you doing?" called Myra. "You can't send for anybody. I'll be kicked out of school if you do. D'you hear?"

The directory fell from Judith's hands. She watched the girl on the bed for some time, frowning anxiously. Then she began to pick up Myra's clothes and hang them in the closet. A tiny square of tinted pasteboard lay on the floor at the bottom of the heap. It proved to be a tally card for bridge. One side was Myra's name, and on the other, Eric's.

Judith left the room and crept down the stairs. In the lower hall she pulled the telephone on its cord into the cloak closet under the stairs, and gave the Sigma Psi number in a muffled voice.

A sleepy voice answered. "No-m," it said. "Mistuh Watahs ain't in. Been gone all night."

Judith crawled wearily back up the stairs. Myra was talking incoherently and tossing about on the bed. Judith began her vigil once more. Recurrent waves of nausea exhausted the sick girl.

It was dawn when Myra lay sleeping quietly enough to be left alone. Judith turned out the electric lights. In another hour, the Stedway house would be a-stir. Already, sparrows were twittering in the trees near the window pane.

Judith drew the blankets high about her patient's throat, and opened the window wide for a few minutes. The fresh dawn breeze swept through the room, and it seemed to her that Myra breathed more softly.

When she had lowered the sash halfway and drawn the blind, she tiptoed out. A door across the hall stood ajar. After a moment, the face of the elder Miss Reasey appeared in the crack. "Anything wrong? I heard you moving about."

"Miss Aldrich has been sick," Judith explained. "But she's sleeping now and I hope nobody will disturb her."

In her own room, she made a "Don't Disturb" placard and, going into the hall again, hung it on Myra's door.

There was just time for a half-hour nap before she must dress for the day's work.

It was a small voice that called to Judith as she wearily climbed the stairs late that afternoon. She went into Myra's room, and found the girl sitting up against the pillows, her face like a mask of tragedy.

"I've been waiting for you for hours," she said tremulously. "Why didn't you come?"

Judith smiled. "I had to meet my classes. I couldn't come any sooner. How do you feel?"

Myra covered her face and began to cry hysterically. "I wish I were dead," she sobbed, over and over.

Judith sat down beside her. "Hush," she said. "You don't want the others to know there's anything wrong. I told them you had a sick headache. Did anyone come in during the day?"

Myra shook her head. "I don't care who comes in. I tell you nothing matters from now on."

Judith rose decisively. "Have you had anything to eat?"

The girl looked at her reproachfully. "Do you think I could touch food now? I'm too miserable even to think about it."

"Nonsense," said Judith, as she left the room. She came back with a box of bouillon cubes and some hot water. "We won't do any talking till you've drunk this," she said, peremptorily.

Myra's jaw set firmly. "I don't want anything but water. I've drunk quarts of it today."

"Mm-m," said Judith, "and each time you drank it, you got sicker, I suppose."

Myra nodded. When Judith proffered the bouillon, she took it meekly. "Ugh! it hasn't any taste," she said, ungratefully.

Judith grinned. "Just the same, it will do you good. Now you rest while I bring some water."

She brought a basin and towels and bathed Myra's flushed face and hands. Then she brought powder and rouge from the dressing table. "You shan't see yourself till I've finished you," she said gaily, and Myra conjured up a watery smile.

"There," she said, handing Myra a mirror. "You don't look sick now."

Myra looked at herself gravely. Then she held out her hand to Judith. "You're good, Judith. Too good. I haven't any right to touch you. I'm so ashamed."

Judith sat down on the foot of the bed. "I suppose you won't have any peace till we've talked this out, Myra."

The other girl nodded. "First of all," she began, "this is the first time I've ever been—drunk. Maybe you won't believe that. But it's true. I don't quite know how this happened."

"You were with Eric, I think," said Judith, quietly.

Myra flushed hotly. "But it wasn't his fault," she cried. "I was with him at the Sig Psi house, playing bridge after dinner. Then a crowd of the boys and their girls got a couple of cars and started for a spin out of town, about eleven o'clock. I told them it was too late, but they said, 'Spoilsport!' and so I went ahead and kept still.

"There was a cute girl down from Chicago, that all the boys were handing a line to. Pretty soon, I saw that Eric wasn't interested in me. He kept leaning over to kid with her. So when we got to the top of a hill and the cars stopped, I jumped out and ran to the car ahead. Two of the other men who didn't have any girls sort-a-took me under their wing. After while they brought the bottle out, and I remembered that Eric had said earlier in the ride, 'Don't give any to the girls. It's dynamite.'

"I was so mad at him I took a big drink of the stuff. And after that—" She broke off, pressing her hands against her eyes.

Judith spoke gently. "Don't agonize, Myra. You've come out of this luckily. Nobody knows but me. And it will never happen again."

Myra threw her head back. "You can bet your life it never will! Do you think I'm so low as ever to touch the vile stuff again?"

"No," Judith answered, "of course not."

"But will you be my friend again, Jude? I'm awfully ashamed to have you do so much for me, when I've been a regular devil to you. If I'd been in your place last night, I'd have let little fool Myra die?"

"I WAS frightened," said Judith, "lest you should die. But I dared not call a doctor. Let's forget it. Shall we?"

Myra shook her head dolefully. "I doubt if I ever can. But I won't talk about it any more."

Judith was on her way to the library just before dinner when Will Wetherel overtook her near the president's house.

"Jude," he said earnestly, "do you know where Eric Waters is?"

She shook her head.

"Well, he was out all night, and in the wee small hours, a woman called for him on the phone. The houseman said she seemed worried. It's all very mysterious, and I can tell you the chapter doesn't like it much."

"I'm sorry," said Judith, curtly, "but that isn't of paramount importance to me." She turned off toward the library.

A few steps farther on, she met Dr. Dorn going toward the administration building.

"I suppose you are on your way to Dean Brown's conference, as I am," he said.

"Conference?" she queried.

"Why, yes, all the bulletin boards are placarded. I don't know what the emergency is."

Judith fell in step with him. "It's a bore," she complained. "But I suppose I'll have to go."

The conference room was almost filled when they entered. Dean Brown came hurrying in after them, carrying a newspaper over his arm.

There was a banner headline in letters three inches high. Judith spelled out the words as he passed, though they were upside down:

"EXTRA! TWO STUDENTS DIE OF POISON BOOZE."

(To Be Continued).

Dean Brown and Eric clash dramatically in the next chapter, and Judith's position is endangered when she stands up for the young man.

Army Cavalry Chief Demands More Money

Washington, Nov. 19.—With Congress and the country committed to a bigger and better army air service, Major General Herbert B. Crosby, chief of cavalry, came forward today with demands for more money for his branch of the service which many believe has been eclipsed by aviation.

Lamenting the fact that cavalry maneuvers have nat been held since 1923, Crosby in his annual report said:

"Every effort should be made to secure funds to hold these maneuvers annually, and to make available transportation funds in order that officers from the Cavalry School and from cavalry regiments may attend.

"In general, I believe that the cavalry of today is better than that of pre-war days, and I believe this condition is entirely due to the Cavalry School. Our equipment is better and is being trained, and tactical knowledge vastly superior to pre-war days."

The report stated that the cavalry during the last year had been supplied with new Browning machine rifles, new pack saddles, and replaced unserviceable horses.

In the old argument of horsemen over the relative superiority of dirt versus paved stalls, Crosby recommended that army posts be equipped with latter as rapidly as funds permit.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Wheat slumped sharply on the Chicago board of trade today but corn displayed more strength, being only fractionally off at the close. Little was done in the oats pit, as the major grain absorbed all the attention.

Wheat closed 2⅛ to 2½ cents lower.

The recent now over the midland has tied up the movement of the corn crop, while a better demand is developing. This cereal closed ⅝ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower because of the weakness of wheat.

The oats pit was deserted while traders watched the break in wheat. The close was unchanged to ⅛ cent lower.

Light receipts, higher hog prices and short covering caused provisions to close higher.

THE VANGUARD INTO COLUMBIA

FIRST OF VISITING HOST REACHES UNIVERSITY SEAT.

DOUBLE CELEBRATION

Dedication of Two War Memorials and the Annual Homecoming to Be Climaxed With Missouri-Kansas Game.

Columbia, Nov. 19.—The vanguard of the 20,000 visitors expected at the combined homecoming celebration and war memorial dedication of the University of Missouri here began arriving today.

Although the dedication of the University's two war memorials, a $250,000 Gothic tower and the first unit of a $1,000,000 athletic plant, does not take place until tomorrow morning and the homecoming celebration does not climax it until tomorrow after the Kansas-Missouri football game, alumni and friends of the University arrived early for various reunions.

Between 25,000 and 35,000 persons are expected to witness the clash between the Missouri Tigers and the Kansas Jayhawkers, always a classic in Missouri Valley football.

Dedication of the memorials tomorrow morning will be featured by speeches from Governor Sam A. Baker; Frank B. Rollins, president of the Missouri Alumni Association; and Mercer Arnold, Joplin, member of the board of curators. A large block of seats has been reserved for various state organizations, families of the University war dead and members of the American Legion.

Plenty of Seats at Tiger-Jayhawk Game

New Stadium Will Seat 43,000 and 5,000 Places Will Be Held For Late Comers, Says Brewer.

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 19.—That there will be plenty of good seats for all who attend the Missouri-Kansas football game here tomorrow is the announcement made by C. L. Brewer, athletic director at the University of Missouri.

"While the advance sale of tickets for this classic battle has far exceeded all former sales," said Mr. Brewer, "the mammoth new Memorial stadium will permit us to care for every person who comes. To make this promise doubly sure we are holding 5,000 good seats until the morning of the game for those who decide to come at the last minute."

Arrangements have been completed whereby the seating capacity of the new stands can be increased to 43,000 with every seat a good one. The old Rollins Field would not care for one-third this number.

Advance sales indicate the largest crowd which has ever seen a football game in Missouri will witness the time-honored scrap between the Jayhawker and the Tiger.

At least one record made by the present Missouri team is safe for all time. Never again will Tiger teams be compelled to play thirteen consecutive games on muddy fields, the record run of bad week-ends, which closed last week after extending over two seasons.

A dry field for the home games is assured with the arrival and spread last week of the giant "slicker" on the grounds of the new Memorial Stadium. The big canvas was spread after the surface had been prepared for the Washington game, and the cover was used at the least sign of rain.

A rubberized canvas made in four sections is used to cover the gridiron. Each section weighs 1,500 pounds.

The new field now is without a superior among the gridirons of the country. Its tan bark surface, when dry and rolled, is soft enough to prevent bruises and yet permits firm footing. According to C. L. Brewer, athletic director, no faster field has ever existed.

Ideal Bride Is 24, the Bridegroom 29

Variation of More Than 4 Years in Age of Man and 2 Years for Woman, Is Declared Dangerous Marriage.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 19.—Ideal married life begins when the man is 29 and the woman is 24 according to statistics released by the Missouri Social Hygiene Association.

"The groom may be younger or older by four years and the bride may be older or younger by two years, without serious results" said the report. "Marriages in which the bride is younger than 21 and the groom younger than 24 become more dangerous."

The report said that when either the bride or the groom was under 19 years of age was tremendously risky.

Mrs. Eunice Parr, Mrs. John Farnan and Miss Bernlece Hildebrant of Guilford were Maryville visitors today.

Albany Rural Routes Will Be Combined

Will Take Effect December 1—Rural Routes in Maryville To Be Merged Monday.

Two rural routes at Albany are to be combined into one, according to this week's Albany Ledger, effective Dec. 1. The merger of these routes at Albany is in line with the policy of the post office department.

The merger of route No. 6, out of the Maryville post office, with Nos. 1 and 2, will go into effect here next Monday.

The following is from the Ledger relative to the merger there:

Postmaster B. F. Hardin has been directed to combine two of the rural routes out of Albany into one, and one carrier is to do the work that two have been doing since the establishment of the routes. The two routes which are to be combined are Nos. 1 and 5, and the route will be designated as No. 1. Wade S. Bentley, regular carrier on the present route No. 1, will continue his duties under the combined mileage. The change will be effective December 1st.

The present No. 1 route will be served the same as in the past, the carrier leaving the office at 8:30 a. m. The route now known as No. 5 will be served in the afternoon, the carrier leaving the office at 1 p. m. Mr. Hardin explains the reason for the carrier leaving at the hour named is that he can take the mail from the Burlington noon train, which is the principal mail of the day, enabling the patrons to receive on the day of publication the Kansas City and St. Joseph morning dailies, as well as other mail from these cities and intermediate points on the day of mailing.

M. H. S. Football Is Praised at Albany

The Maryville-Albany game created much pre-game discussion. It had been doped by fans to be one of the best games of the season's schedule. The contest was not in the least disappointing. The Maryville team played a brand of football any high school could well be proud of and in a clean sports manlike manner.—Albany Ledger.

St. Joseph Central Wins Game, 103-0

St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 19.—St. Joseph Central High School eleven went on a wild scoring spree here yesterday and swamped the Fall City, Neb., high school team, 103 to 0.
